HAVE THE BARGES INSPECTED.

No amount of good legislation here after directed towards compelling regula inspection and other measures to secure the safety of excursion barges can atone for the awful result of previous neglect, marked by the disaster on the Republic. But the demand for such legislation is not the less imperative.

It is truly astounding to find, now that the subject has been called to public attention with such terrible force, that such a looseness and lack of system has prebarges for excursions. There has been idea. solutely no inspection or supervision oughfares, of such craft. Owners have been at liberty to let the boats to any persons who chose to take them and the accompany-

Officials who are charged with the duties of looking af er the proper inspection of steam vessels show by the statutes how they are prevented from interfering in the cases of any other floating structures. At the same time, they declare their belief that an extension of the inspection laws so as to cover all classes of vessels is necessary.

This necessity should be promptly met. Such a costly lesson as that taught by the collapse of the Republic must not be repeated.

USELESS INCCULATION.

A boy inoculated for hydrophobia in Dr. Ginien's institute has did of rabies. No charge is made that the virus injection caused his death. The question is whether such inoculation is not useless. After the boy had been treated the mother was assured that she need have no fear as the child might be bitten any number of times by mad dogs thereafter and never get hydrophobia. On learning of the death Dr. Granen said that so much virus had been absorbed by the boy as to render cure impossible. He also asserted that out of 251 cases treated in his institute there had only been oue

Statistics show that there is less than one death a year from hydrophobia in any State in the Union, although thousands of people are bitten by dogs It is therefore reasonably certain that the inoculation of those referred to by Dr. Gibigh only caused them unneces sary pain and inconvenience, as they would not have had the rabies in any instance.

Experiments which affect the health o human beings should only be pushed where there is some chance of beneficial results.

ELECTRIC LIGHT VS. HOME.

long tate of woe, also of electric lights and of bugs, is unfolded in this morning's World by the once happy lessee of handsome dwelling apartments in a far uptown house.

The woe all centres about the lights Before they came to illuminate the outer front and show-windows of the dry goods store beneath the complainant's windows, all was peace and loveliness in the apartments o' nights. Now, according to the unfolded tale, all is glare and buzzing and heat and bugs. The apartments are so brightly lighted that there is no privacy and no chance for cool twilleb unging behind open windows. And the glare in the eyes prevents even the sleep for which tired nature will yearn.

It is a clear case of applied science against domestic felicity, and felicity seems at present to have the worser end of the struggle. The complainant trie to possess his soul in peace until he found that peace was not in it. Now he has brought suit for damages, and means to ask for an injunction on the parties who run the lights. It is an interesting and it may be an instructive contest. Is it to end in the salvation or the electrocution of the particular "Home, sweet home

A Jersey City patient with a cancer is letting himself die, through his worse than stupid submission to the doctrines of "faith cure." The first thought of an intelligent being, contemplating such a case, is one that might be brutal, but almost excusably so, in its expression. If the law in New York can reach the poor wretch who wilfully attempts to take his own life, why can it not anywhere be applied to the salvation om himself of such a stubbornly deluded creature as this one?
